

Now I've heard it all

Just when I thought I heard it all, the democratic leaders and a few ducklings that drink the "Kool-Aid" never cease to amaze me. One loyal follower does not want change, but admits the state's been broke for years. Wake up call! Your democratic leaders are breaking NJ. When Clinton says, "in the middle of an economic crisis, Corzine put you first," the words "they lie" ring loud. When Burzichelli/Riley say they favor reduced spending, working families and tax relief, do they really think voters believe their nonsense. In my profession, honesty is a way of life. Let me share some brutally honest facts.

From 2000 to 2007 New Jersey created 55,800 government jobs while 79,000 private sector jobs left the state in the last decade. New Jersey ranks 50th in the USA in job creation. The only growth industry in New Jersey is the government, employing more workers than any other state at your expense.

Burzichelli voted 95 times to raise taxes on every New Jerseyean $6.5 billion. Some school districts don't have students, but collect school taxes and pay administrators. Did your elected officials turn their heads or are they just inept? They promise pensions they know they cannot pay. Isn't that fraud?

Unemployment in District 3 is the highest in the state. They gave you the highest property taxes and highest state income tax in the nation. They run the worst healthcare plan in the nation. They tax seniors to pay for schools and tax everything they own when they die driving retirees out of this state. These are the facts New Jersey Democratic leaders can brag about. They took their own constituents for granted. They raised taxes by over $1.2 billion dollars during a recession, hurting everyone. Assemblyman Roberts was right about one thing, they never give up. They just keep taxing and taxing and imposing regulations until you are sick to your stomach.

I'm confident that voters, including thousands of registered democrats, take offense to the deception and outright lies propagated by those who broke this state. The audacity to ask for another chance to fix things (keep milking the cow) boggles my mind. All voters are angered, don't like being duped, and are sick and tired of officials who should hide their head in shame. God help us. We desperately need change in Trenton.
